Letter from the President

“Does anybody really know what time it is?” - Chicago 1970

As you read a Credit Union newsletter, you're probably expecting paragraphs mostly pertaining to WECU, the financial industry or minimally, my work life. But those that know me well, including the employees of WECU, know that I don't believe people can truly separate their work life from their home life from their spiritual life from serving the community and so on. I don't believe in the term work-life balance. The word “balance” to me indicates that you must take from one side and give to the other in order to make things equal. I don't believe people work like that. We all have one life. We all have one heart. We all have one soul. Work, home, spirit, and community need to all work together, not be separated, not expected to be divided into parts to make things equal or balanced. We believe in the whole person.

In May, I celebrated the conclusion of my first year with White Eagle Credit Union. As I look back over the past year, I think about all the events that took place not only in my working life, but in my personal life as well. During that time there is one thing that is more prominent than starting a new job, or the raising rate environment or, or, or... the moment that was prominent for me was the passing of my father-in-law, Terry Tennyson. Terry loved his family more than anything. But his love for music was not far behind.

So, today I want to write about one word: Time. More than just a measurement of seconds, minutes, and hours. Time can provide healing. Time can give perspective. Time can fly. Time can vanish. My first year with WECU felt quick. But at the same time, I feel as if I've been here forever. I want to thank the employees of WECU for embracing me, having an open-mind, and for their commitment. I want to thank you, the members, for trusting us and allowing us to serve you. Our commitment to serving you and serving our communities grows daily.

But if there is one thing I want you to take from this article, it is the word: Time. Now, I can't give you the time back that you took reading this article. But I can encourage you to spend time with the ones you love. Take time to listen to the music. Look back at the times you've shared and smile. None of us can slow time down. None of us can stop time from punishing our bodies and wrinkling our skin. But we can give thanks for the time we have had together and look forward to all of the good times yet to come.

One year with White Eagle Credit Union. I'm cherishing it more than I can express with words. We are established, financially fit, and prepared to be successful for a long, long time. We thank you for believing in us, as we believe in you.

Only the beginning. Only just the start – “Beginnings” Chicago 1969
